

EnviroStor Disclaimer

The Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC) makes no representation or warranties regarding the accuracy of EnviroStor or information available on EnviroStor. DTSC has made every reasonable effort to ensure the accuracy of the information and materials contained within this website. Because of the dynamic nature of the information and materials contained within EnviroStor and the reliance on information or materials from outside sources, DTSC makes no warranty, representation, or guarantee as to the content, sequence, accuracy, reliability, timeliness, or completeness of any such information or materials. The information or materials contained within this website may be modified at any time and without notice. The content of EnviroStor is for informational purposes only; any use of this information is at the user's own risk. Information provided on EnviroStor should not be construed in any way as giving business, legal or other advice. DTSC is not liable for the accuracy or misuse of the information provided. DTSC reserves the right to change the information at any time.

Not all sites/facilities are represented on the Geographic Information System (GIS) map. Many sites are either historic in nature or are recent entries, which do not have coordinate information for their locations. Project locations are best estimates that DTSC obtained or that third parties provided to DTSC. Copyrights belong to DTSC, the third-party providers, or DTSC and the third-party providers.

DTSC provides general site/facility information in the project profile report. As a matter of practice, DTSC does post many of the key documents on the EnviroStor website. The purpose is to provide the public with online access to as many documents as practically possible. However, not every document is made available on EnviroStor. The actual documents posted on EnviroStor vary on a case-by-case basis and are based upon a variety of factors. The purpose of posting these documents on EnviroStor the website is to inform the public and provide basic information. To obtain additional information, DTSC advises the user to: view source documents via links in the profile report; contact the assigned project manager; request assistance through the EnviroStor help desk; or request to view public files through the California Public Records Act (Guidelines for Access to Public Records).
